

TABLE OF CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION	9
1. COMPUTATIONAL AND DIGITAL MUSICOLOGY	11
1.1. Survey of major developments in computational musicology	13
1.2. Recent directions in computational musicology	23
1.3. Influence of computational methods on traditional musicology	30
1.4. Scepticism toward computational methods	35
2. SYMBOLIC MUSIC NOTATION	42
2.1. Rendering encoding languages	43
2.2. Analytical encoding languages	46
2.2.1. MIDI	47
2.2.2. Essen Associative Code and Folksong Database	49
2.2.3. Humdrum	53
2.2.4. MusicXML	58
2.2.5. Music21	59
2.2.6. MEI	61
2.2.7. Music Processing Suite	63
3. DIGITAL TOOLS FOR MUSIC ANALYSIS	65
3.1. Computational analysis of rhythm and melody	66
3.1.1. Computational analysis of rhythm and melody with Humdrum Tools	66
3.1.2. Computational analysis of rhythm and melody with music21	73
3.1.3. Computational analysis of rhythm and melody with Music Processing Suite	79
3.2. Computational analysis of harmony.	84
3.2.1. Computational analysis of harmony with Humdrum Tools	90
3.2.2. Computational analysis of harmony with music21	100
3.2.3. Computational analysis of harmony with Music Processing Suite	107
3.2.4. Automatic harmony analysis with machine learning methods	110
4. DIAGRAMMATICS	114
4.1. Characteristic traits of diagrams	117
4.2. Diagrammatics — the concept of Charles S. Peirce	119

4.2.1. Reasoning classification as proposed by Charles S. Peirce	122
4.3. Cognitive Dimensions of Diagrammatics	127
5. DIAGRAMMATIC MUSIC ANALYSIS	131
6. INTERACTIVE DIAGRAMMATIC MUSIC ANALYSIS ON THE EXAMPLE OF J. S. BACH'S FUGUES BWV 846–869	145
6.1. Data extraction with digital tools	147
6.1.1. Data extraction for melodic analysis	151
6.1.2. Data extraction for rhythmic analysis	158
6.1.3. Data extraction for harmony analysis	160
6.2. Practical algorithmic part	177
6.3. Possible applications of the Interactive Diagrammatic Music Analysis Project . . .	193
6.3.1. Generating abductive hypotheses.	194
6.3.2. Examples of music analysis paths at close reading level	201
6.3.3. Examples of music analysis paths at distant reading level.	216
6.3.4. Towards future developments and implementations of the project	227
CONCLUSIONS	231
BIBLIOGRAPHY	236
WEBSITES.	252
LIST OF FIGURES	255
LIST OF EXAMPLES	259
LIST OF TABLES.	260